2. Comprehension:
Create your own summary of the story by listing and describing FIVE major events.

1. ___________________________________________________________________________
2. ___________________________________________________________________________
3. ___________________________________________________________________________
4. ___________________________________________________________________________
5. ___________________________________________________________________________
3. Application:
Use the events from the story to create a newspaper article. You may search the Internet to find a layout you prefer, or you can use one of the templates provided. You are to include:

- A catchy headline and story:
  - What should be included in the headline to catch the readers’ attention? How would you then elaborate and explain that headline in the article? What’s the most interesting part of the story?

- An interview:
  - Pretend that you conducted an interview with Rainsford. What were his experiences like? What tactics did he use to survive? What type of mindset was he in during the hunt? How did he make his final decision?

- Illustration:
  - Select a character/event from the story and illustrate it on the front cover of your news article.

- Miscellaneous Extras
  - Include the price of the paper, the date, author’s name, shopping coupons, additional story titles located within the paper, etc.
